

CASH FOR THE DISTRICT FIGHTS

Plan Started by Devery Had to Be Followed by Other Contestants.

CARROLL'S BIG STRUGGLE

Strong Fight Being Pushed Against Him—Sullivan's Battle—"Battery Dan's" Effort to Beat Murphy.

If there be no whacking of heads at the wind up of the primary fights to-morrow certain it is that the bank accounts of several ambitious bosses of the second rank will be a lot leaner than they were a month ago. More money has been spent during the struggles between a dozen men for representation on the Tammany Executive Committee than ever before in a preliminary campaign for the adjustment of family rows.

Devery Brews the Troubles.

Ask any Tammany man for an explanation and he will tell you that none other than William Stephen Devery, "The Big Un," is to blame. Further, you will be informed that this same Devery has stirred up more trouble for the Tammany bosses, who felt themselves secure before he shied his ambition into the political ring, than any other man identified with Tammany Hall in twenty years.

If the dollars that "Big Bill" has spent himself and compelled others to spend during the last two months were all added together there would be not much less than 700,000 of them. And all good Tammany money, collected during the four prosperous years of "Grat." Several men who are already up to their necks in the district fights are even now asking if the game is worth the price. Devery and his backers think it is. When you say "Devery's backers" the very first name that comes to mind is that of John Francis Carroll, who is conducting a hunt for the scalp of his old-time patron, Richard Weistand Croker.

Carroll's Strong Backing.

Carroll's fight against Croker is ancient history now. That it is a real fight there is no shadow of doubt. That Carroll picked Devery to make the running in his plan to drive the "Sport," "Two-Spot" and "Joke" triumvirate out of business and compel a thorough reorganization of Tammany is known to every politician in town.

At Tammany Hall to-day it was asserted that there would be only two changes in the Executive Committee of the organization. It was thought that "Battery Dan" Finn would defeat ex-Commissioner Murphy in the First District, and that John C. Sheehan would win in the Ninth.

Finn, who is not committed to either the Croker wing represented by "Sport" Murphy, or the anti-Croker element headed by Carroll, is regarded as having a good chance in the First. He has left the Battery district wide open and is conducting a spread-eagle campaign among the Syrians and Greeks in the Washington street quarter. With "Bootsy" Candon, who is funnier than ever was "Sojer" Flynn or the late little Judge Duffy, rounding up the swartly push-cart men who live in the Battery district, the campaign has never been monotonous or lacking in go. Perry Belmont, who is Finn's principal backer, is said to have "stood treat." Belmont, by the way, is depending on Finn to pull him through the Congress convention which is to be held next month. Belmont was beaten at the special election by Montgomery Leister, a Republican.

Certain of Success.

Everybody knows about "Big Bill" Devery's campaign. It has been the most entertaining to the average citizen and the most troublesome to Sheehan and Goodwin. The "Big Fellow" is very sanguine of success, and if the Sheehan and Goodwin forces stand apart and vote straight against each other, he looks to have a good chance to win. But the indications are that Goodwin, who is admittedly the weaker of the two, in the threatened row, will throw his strength to Sheehan, making the result extremely doubtful. The fight against Sexton in the Ninth seems to have its origin in the Tilden Club, the new Democratic organization in the district. The campaign is with Carroll, Kenne, the boss painter, who is opposing him, was backed on by Percy M. Stewart, the Superintendent of Buildings. Stewart has been making Sexton a lot of trouble, and if Kenne will be due to the generalship of Stewart. The campaign there has been pretty quiet, but the order of that in the Ninth, minus the picturesque speech and manner of Devery.

"Tom" Dunn is really serious for the first time in a long while. He and his followers blame Devery for the opposition to his leadership, led by Horshoeer Walsh, Devery said of Dunn: "Tom Dunn don't need no red flag for everybody to know that he's an auctioneer. His browne's enough."

Carroll's Troubles Serious.

The fight against Carroll is more serious than all the rest of the contests combined. Carroll, who is as "smooth" a politician as any man in Tammany Hall, has been marked for slaughter by the direct order of Croker. He has accepted the challenge and the aristocratic Twenty-ninth, where the Tammany vote is about one-third as compact as in the rest of the district, has been the scene of a Republican forces, has never witnessed anything like the campaign he has been conducting. Carroll's opponent, as was evidenced by the discovery that several of his constituents had transferred their voting residences temporarily from the Eleventh District to the Twenty-ninth, is the leader of the Twenty-ninth.

Carroll and his people have figured it out that he will be elected. J. J. Stein, the Greater New York Democracy leader, has been trying to wedge his way into the leadership between Carroll and Dunn, but does not appear to have any show. Thomas Gilman, who was at the helm against Carroll, has withdrawn and thrown his support to Carroll.

Carroll Voters Taken from List.

Upon the application of Maurice D. Gilman, Justice in the Supreme Court, for the names of eighty-four alleged voters, it was charged that the man was either illegally transferred from one district to another or that the names to the transfer list were forged. Mr. Marshall told Justice Gilman that one of the names on the list was that of William Huber, who died over a year ago. He said that Mrs. Huber, the widow of the man, was in court and was ready to swear to this state of facts. "We also have the cases of two other men," said Mr. Marshall, "that are at present in prison. They are Hugh Parsons and John McNulty. One of them is at present in Sing Sing and the other in Elmira Reformatory." "I believe," said Justice Gilman, "that Mr. Marshall 'has these matters' should be placed before the proper criminal officers for their action." "That has been done," replied Mr. Devery.

CASSIDY SMILES AT OPPONENTS. I'LL WIN IN A WALK, SAYS BILL DEVERY.

Queens Borough President Says the Men Against Him Could Not Win with Croker's Aid and Cannot Now.

There will be contests among the Democrats in the five wards of Queens Borough at the primaries to-morrow, and Borough President Joseph Cassidy declares that he will win out in all and again be selected as the leader in that borough.

The hottest fight at the primaries will be in the home ward of the Borough President, which formerly was Long Island City. There James Hicks will attempt to defeat Cassidy.

The Borough President smiled to-day, however, when the opposition was mentioned.

"The men who are fighting me," he said, "tried to beat me when Richard Croker gave them assistance, and they failed. They are going it alone now, and they will fail on a miracle." Electioneering in Queens Borough differs a bit from the Manhattan method. While the city politicians ride about in carriages rounding up the voters the Queens leaders paddle about Jamaica Bay tagging the clam diggers. Several of the mud islands in the bay are on the map of the Borough of Queens as being located in the Eleventh Ward of that borough, of which Croker is the leader, while others are shown in the Fifth Ward, of which "Phil" Cronin has long been the recognized boss.

As these islands are the dwelling places of the clam diggers, the majority of whom vote, Croker and Cronin find it necessary to include the islands in their campaign tours, and so were the clam diggers around the bay, testing their muscles and oratorical powers.

He reports a prospective full vote from the mud towns and feel that their bay labors have not been in vain.

FINN'S SON-IN-LAW RUSSIAN PEASANTS WANTS JURY TRIAL. LECTURED BY CZAR.

Asks Justice Gildersleeve to Transfer the Primary Election Case Against Him to Court of General Sessions.

Justice Gildersleeve to-day reserved decision on the application of Matthew Stripp, son-in-law of Municipal Court Judge Daniel Finn, for a transfer of the criminal prosecution pending against him in the Court of Special Sessions to the Court of General Sessions.

Stripp was arrested on a charge of taking the acknowledgment of a person called Joseph McKenna when he knew that the person who appeared before him to claim his right to vote at the ensuing primary election was not McKenna. The offense is a misdemeanor and is punishable with a fine of 500 and a year's imprisonment. James Thomas Madden, counsel for Stripp, said that persons in District Attorney Jerome's office had conspired to injure Stripp and that a witness against Stripp had made a false affidavit before the District Attorney in order to bolster up the charge against him.

Counsel contended that under the Constitution of the United States and of the State of New York Stripp was entitled to be tried before a jury, of which he would be deprived in a trial at Special Sessions.

Assistant District Attorney Sanford opposed the motion and denied the assertions made with reference to the District Attorney in his office. He pointed out that the Code provided only for the transfer of certain cases, and this case was not one of them. As to the alleged conspiracy, he said it was a matter of fact that Justice Wyatt had acted within his rights.

RAILROAD MEN ASK MORE PAY.

Demand to Be Made on Officials of All Lines Converging at New York.

15 PER CENT. ADVANCE.

Plans Formulated at Secret Meeting Attended by 1,000 Delegates and Decisive Action Will Follow.

Officials of all the railroads converging at New York and Jersey City are facing the prospect of a general strike and tie-up of their properties unless they grant their employees a 15 per cent. advance in wages.

The demands of the employees were formulated at a secret Sunday conference in the Taylor Opera-House at Trenton, N. J., at which all branches of railroad employees were represented.

Final action was not taken, but it was unanimously agreed that the demand for an increase would be made, and unless acceded to a general tie-up would result.

Over one thousand delegates attended the conference. Addresses were made by Mayor Katzpach, of Trenton, and Representative Gardner, District President Nichols, of the United Mine Workers, was present in behalf of the striking miners and made an appeal for funds to strike. A collection of $100 was taken up for this purpose. Officials of the road refused to discuss the prospect of demands from the men, though one of them admitted that the situation was serious, as the agitation for increased pay was not confined to this district.

He said that railroad employees throughout the country had been pushing the question of increased pay because of the reports of increased earnings and the outlook for continued prosperity.

HID $100 IN CRACKERS.

Then When $40 Disappeared He Had His Apprentice Arrested.

Nathan Resler, a cracker baker, of No. 61 James street, had $100 Saturday night. In order to keep it secure he placed the entire amount in a barrel and put a lot of crackers over it. When he went to look for it this morning part of the money had disappeared, only $60 remaining. Resler caused the arrest of his apprentice, Isidor Haver, on the charge of having stolen the money, and Haver was arrested by Magistrate Pool in the Centre Street Court. He denies the theft and Magistrate Pool ordered his discharge because of lack of evidence.

THE ROOSEVELT HANDSHAKE.

HOW PRESIDENT GRABS YOUR HAND.

12,000 PEOPLE AT NASSAU ARE GETTING THE HANDSHAKE TO-DAY.

He clasps the hand well up the palm, his fingers extending almost to the wrist, gives it a quick, strong squeeze and the next thing one knows the President is some distance off and moving away.

The President has the knack of speeding along persons with whom he has shaken hands. He does this by the slight twist that cannot be described, but which has made him perfect in this manner of speeding people by him and they pass as rapidly as he can shuffle by his favorite "How-do-you-do-sir." I am GLAD to see you-sir.

BRITISH OCCUPY MALAY TERRITORY.

Excitement in Kalantan Over Move Which May Mean Extension of Protectorate Over Whole Peninsula.

PARIS, Sept. 15.—A despatch received here from Saigon, capital of French Cochinchina, says: "Three hundred British troops have occupied the Malay principality of Kalantan, at the request of its Sultan. 'Kalantan pays a tribute to Siam, so this is an aggression. There is great excitement at Kalantan as it is feared it means the extension of the British protectorate over the whole Malay peninsula.'"

Kalantan, or Kalantan, is a State on the Malay Peninsula, extending along its East coast. It pays a small yearly tribute to Siam. The principal town, Kalantan, is situated on a river which is navigable by means of boats. The produce of the State consists of tin, pepper, and some gold and iron. The population is estimated at 50,000. What are termed the Federated Malay States, namely Perak, Selangor, Negri Sembilan and Pahang, which occupy a large portion of the Malay peninsula, are under British protection.

KILLING OF WIFE HUBER'S SECOND CRIME OF MURDER

MRS. GEORGE HUBER. (From a photograph.)

If the stories told by the father of the murdered woman are true George Huber, who killed his wife at Great Barrington, Mass., yesterday, committed his second murder when he shot her. The old father, who keeps a little stationery and candy store at No. 208 Decatur street, Brooklyn, also accuses his son-in-law of bigamy.

Huber is crazed with grief in the jail at Great Barrington. He is sorry he killed his wife and sorry he did not get a chance to kill the man with whom she ran away from home last July, Andrew Searing, a concert singer, who escaped with a bullet in his right arm.

Her elopement with Searing appeared to drive the husband insane. He hunted for her in every direction, but did not learn until late last week that she was in the neighborhood of Great Barrington. He lost no time in going there. Friday and Saturday he searched for her without avail. Yesterday he found her as she was leaving her boarding-house in company with Searing.

"Good God," said the woman, when she saw her husband, "there's George." Searing turned and ran with all his might. Huber drew a pistol and fired at Searing, hitting him in the arm. Mrs. Huber also ran, but not swiftly enough to escape the vengeance of her husband. His first shot struck her in the side and she fell to the ground. Huber made no attempt to escape and at first took the affair very coolly. He said that the desertion of his wife had driven him insane, but that he had no intention of shooting her when he went to Great Barrington.

The father of the girl was found in his little candy store this morning, selling sweets and stationery to the children of a nearby school. He is a widower and the dead woman was his only child. "Huber," said Mr. Bentel, "killed a man down in Myrtle avenue some time ago and served a term in prison. He was pardoned by Gov. Hill. I do not remember the date of the crime, but the records will show that his picture is in the Rogues' Gallery."

JEALOUS OF BOY, MADE HERSELF A BURNT OFFERING

Man of 70 Mortally Wounds Her for Giving Bread and Butter to Farm Hand.

THE VICTIM IS AGED 68.

(Special to The Evening World.)

SOUTHWICK, Mass., Sept. 15.—Insane jealousy of a twenty-year-old boy, who, he believed had alienated the affections of his wife, who is sixty-eight years old, led Andrew Genvich, a prosperous farmer, aged seventy years, to inflict fatal injuries on his wife and attempt to take his own life.

Genvich asked his wife to accompany him to a lonely spot to gather mushrooms. He drew a razor and cut her jugular vein. As she lay bleeding on the ground he bent her head unmercifully with a large flat stone. Genvich was prevented from cutting his own throat by the arrival of his son-in-law, George Gasper.

Genvich and his wife carried on their farm with the assistance of the youth in the case, William Dechet. Neighbors say Genvich's suspicions were without foundation. Genvich does not say that the affection which he avers was manifested by his wife was reciprocated by Dechet. He says Mrs. Genvich frequently gave Dechet bread and butter and other things to eat outside of meal times. Mrs. Genvich cannot recover.

Genvich will be arraigned in the District Court at Westfield to-day.

According to Vanderpool, he saw Peros driving down Jerome avenue, near One Hundred and Sixty-third street, at twenty miles an hour. He called to him to slow up, but Peros did not do so. Vanderpool gave chase. The auto was driving away from him when at One Hundred and Sixty-third street Kersey caught sight of the chase. He dug his spur into the horse and soon overtook the machine. Peros and his chauffeur were taken to the Highbridge station, where the owner of the machine deposited $9 cash bail and was released.

SUNDAY WORLD WANTS WORK. MONDAY MORNING WONDERS.

Mother, in Agony Over Daughter's Illness, Sacrifices Her Life According to Bible.

CHILD WILL RECOVER.

PHILADELPHIA, Sept. 15.—Mrs. Teresa Sokoral died yesterday morning from burns she received the day before.

Her child lay ill in the Municipal Hospital and the mother had prayed long for her daughter's recovery. Reading the chapter from Numbers, "And ye shall offer a burnt offering, a sacrifice made of fire," she thought that she saw in it an inspiration that would bring back health to the stricken child.

Taking a kerosene oil lamp, she spread its contents over her clothes and set fire to herself by igniting a leaf from the Bible, on which was a picture of Christ.

Her screams aroused Benjamin Brown, keeper of the hotel, and he flung a blanket around the woman, hastily burning himself in the effort to save her.

A patrol wagon was called and Mrs. Sokoral was taken to the Pennsylvania Hospital. The doctors said at once that there was no hope.

At the Municipal Hospital it was announced that the child would probably recover. The intelligence came like an answer to the woman's sacrifice.

A feature of the affair was a baseball game between the "Downtown Finns" and the "Uptown Finns" for a silver trophy, which was won by the "Uptowns" by a score of 7 to 6. Judge Wiener officiated as umpire.

The affair was a big success, over 600 guests sitting down to dinner at one time. The officers of the organization are: John J. Donohue, President; Nicholas J. White, Vice-President; Jacob I. Wiener, First Vice-President; Harry Lagrave, Second Vice-President; Frank Fischer, Financial Secretary; A. TOOK LAUDANUM AND DIED.

Sufferer Sought to Dampen Pain After an Operation.

Suffering intense pain from an operation, Charles F. Donohue, thirty-one years old, of No. 171 State street, Brooklyn, took five ounces of laudanum to make him sleep, and died, Donohue, because of his suffering, had been accustomed to take large quantities of laudanum, and it was not unusual for him to take from three to four ounces as a dose. This deadened the pain and induced sleep.

He was in great pain all yesterday, and bought five ounces of laudanum, which he took on once. He became unconscious within an hour, and his family summoned Dr. Gildersleeve, who worked over him all night. Donohue never regained consciousness, and died to-day. Dr. Gildersleeve said five ounces of laudanum was sufficient to kill five men.
